

MarieKathrine Poppel, MA Social Science

Assistant Professor

Department of Social Work, Institute of Social Science, Economics and Journalism

Ilisimatusarfik/University of Greenland.

MKP was Head of Department of Social Work 2012-2013.

MKP's doctoral dissertation "Men's violence against women in intimate relations in Greenland" is planned to be defended October 2020.

She was guest researcher at Institute of Criminology, University of Oslo, September-October 2008, and guest lecturer at University of Victoria, UVIC, Institute of Social Work. Victoria, BC, September 2010.

MarieKathrine Poppel has published a number of articles and book chapters on gender equality (most recently 'Are Women Taking over Power and Labour from Men? Gender Relations in Pre- and Post-colonial Greenland' (2015); 'Changes in gender roles in Greenland and perceived contributions to the household' (2015); 'Citizenship of Indigenous Greenlanders in a European Nation State: The inclusionary practices of Iverneq' (2014). She has also published several articles and book chapters on gender and violence. MKP is the editor of the book 'Køn og Vold i Grønland' ('Gender and Violence in Greenland') (2005). MKP has been part of research teams on gender equality as well as domestic violence and she participated in the Survey of Living Conditions in the Arctic, SLiCA as a member of the Greenland research team, as national organizer of the regional interview efforts and as an author of articles based on SLiCA findings.

MKP is presently working on a Greenland contribution on gender perspectives to the forthcoming version of ECONOR (Economies of the North) IV and has been invited as a co-researcher to participate in the Canadian led (Université Laval) project 'Arctic Economy and Social Transitions – The Wage Partnership'.